NATIONAL PUBLIC SAFETY TELECOMMUNICATORS WEEK

Murfreesboro, TN – They are the calm voices behind the scenes, working together to answer 9-1-1 emergency and non-emergency calls for service and coordinating public safety emergency responses. Next week, Murfreesboro's Emergency Communications Specialists will be honored for their dedicated service.

Every year in April, Public Safety Telecommunicators are honored as part of National Public Safety Telecommunicators Week for serving their communities as the critical communications link between citizens and emergency services field personnel.

The Murfreesboro Emergency Communications Center invites the media to take a tour of the Communications Center and speak with our dedicated and highly skilled team of Emergency Communications Professionals. Learn how communicators help our citizens in their critical time of need and assist the emergency service providers in protecting life and property across the City.

WHO: Ceremony honoring Emergency Communication Specialists.

WHAT: National Public Safety Telecommunicators Week.

WHERE: Murfreesboro Police Department
1004 N. Highland Ave.
Murfreesboro

WHEN: April 15, 2019 11AM.

One Emergency Communications Specialist will be named Telecommunicator of the Year.

If you plan on attending, please let Public Information Officer Larry Flowers know in advance. Parking is available in the front of the Police Headquarters building.
